 It is amazing that a multi-billion dollar co. can go after a private individual, with very little money, forcing them to change their entire way of life, losing everything along the way, because of false evidence...

 and continue to get away with it. On top of that, they are so powerful that they can dox, swat, and destroy that person, and no law enforcement even bats an eye.

 Now the judge, who replaced another (3rd time?), claims that if I break her 'rule' they may elect to strike my counter-claim? How unreal is this?! The due process here is totally broken. The rule of law is exactly that; to RULE. With no regard for the actual victims...

 Not just myself, but MANY others. As was explained to me by a few, there is a term (that unfort. I cannot remember) that describes the power a large company has, even over regulatory bodies. It is so big and powerful, that govt would be afraid for it to fail..

 causing major economic and social impacts. What I have to say about this is that the govt should have been doing its damned job from the beginning. Unfortunately, money is the ruling class, as it has always been.

 I came to the realization that even with legal/financial support, it was a losing fight, especially after the failure of @LinWood and his consequential decimation of any merit Unsworth had to his VALID legitimacy of @elonmusk calling him a 'pedo'...

 Of course, I spoke with the attys and financier about these concerns, feeling that we just needed to end it and be done, and they pleaded with me that it would be a 'fair fight'. As we all know, it is anything but. As an FBI

I have conveyed to the attys MANY times that I just wanted this to all end. The amount of stress, heartache, etc was too much to bear. Plus, tesla just kept coming with the lies and accusations, going after my credibility in any way they could, stooping to the lowest of levels.

I was planning to write my response to the judge today, but ultimately there is NOTHING I can say or do that is going to justify TO THEM that producing all the evidence I've laid out before the public, is not breaking their little 'protective order'. So yes...

I've broken their 'protective order', ignored tesla's 'nda'. But you know what? Other companies I have been at, I have signed NDAs with and have NEVER released any information about them, nor have I really even discussed, with the exception of job interviews, etc...

So I'm not prone to just breaking agreements every day. Well, you can say that I broke my litigation financing agreement, as well agreements I had with legal counsel. Well, that comes with the territory of needing to get VALID, TRUTHFUL information out to the masses...

So, if you have kept up with this thread, here's what I have to say: judge baldwin, you can take your rule of law and shove it up your ass. Impose your sanctions on me, come after me, extradite me. Do whatever you think is necessary for you to do, to cave to a bully billionaire and punish me for going against the grain and doing THE RIGHT THING. I may have been born in the USA, but I NEVER agreed to the laws that govern it. Of course I agree and abide by most laws, but some are simply ridiculous...such as protecting large companies...

judge baldwin, how do you feel about tesla lying to investors regarding public safety, investor money fraud, internal fraud, and smearing multiple people? I say to you: Go fuck yourself.

And quite honestly, I don't respect the SEC either. So, I guess @elonmusk and I have that in common.
